

Law 779
Prosecuting Terrorists in Article III Courts
Syracuse University College of Law
Assistant Professor William C. Snyder
Fall 2007

Course Description:

This three-credit course examines the use of civilian Article III courts to prosecute terrorists by following the logical course of a prosecution - legal basis, investigative techniques, litigation and sentencing issues. Major topics include: principles of counter-terrorist prosecutions, major legislative packages, definitions of terrorism, numerous selected criminal statutes, overview of the intelligence community, overview of federal law enforcement agencies, use and protection of national security information, Fourth Amendment framework, the Attorney General's Guidelines, U.S. agents acting abroad, electronic surveillance, interviews and interrogation, use of the grand jury, material witnesses, the Classified Information Procedures Act, physical security, witness protection, relevant United States Sentencing Commission Guidelines, litigation strategies and case studies. One of the goals of the course is to acquire experience working with statutes and regulations, in addition to the more traditional appellate court opinions used in most law school courses. This is primarily a lecture course and not a seminar.

Class Meeting Times:

Class meets on Mondays and Wednesdays from 2:30 to 3:45 p.m. in Room 175. Past experience has shown that the location is subject to change by the Registrar.

Required Reading:

The primary texts are Abrams, Anti-Terrorism and Criminal Enforcement (2d ed., Thomson/West 2005), and Weinberg, Global Terrorism: A Beginner's Guide (Oneworld 2005). A packet of other materials will be available at the copy center. Still more materials will be provided in class. All materials other than the primary texts will be available on the course website at www.prosecutingterrorists.com. All required readings are essential. Supplemental readings will be available for anyone who wants to delve into a subject more deeply. Anything projected during class will be available on the course website.

The reading assignments appear to be long. This is a three-credit course which meets only twice per week. Thus, assignments are 50% longer than those for a three-credit course meeting three times per week. Many pages are from articles and can be read quickly, however. Students are cautioned to read original source materials – such as statutes and cases – very closely. Often, I will give guidance in class as to what can be skimmed and what needs to be read in detail. Avoid falling behind.

Grading:

This is an exam class. In-class participation will not be a specific percentage of the final grade. Classroom participation will be taken into account in determining a final course grade only under exceptional circumstances. Ordinarily, performance on the anonymously-graded, closed-book, in-class final examination will constitute 100% of the final course grade. Students are expected to act responsibly and professionally in preparing for and participating in class. In my experience, not including class participation in the grade actually promotes discussion in this type of course – perhaps because people are free from fear of sanction for expressing their views on controversial subjects or for displaying their ignorance. You will learn more if you participate, and that increased knowledge should shine through in your answers on the examination. I do call on students in class, but generally not for things that everyone should already know (such as the facts of a case or its procedural posture).

You may use computers or bluebooks to answer exam questions. The exam will include both essay and objective questions. The Registrar has not yet (August 18, 2007) set a date and time for the examination. I will let you know as soon as possible.

Availability:

As a new member of the faculty, I do not yet have an assigned office at the College of Law. Thus, I am available for personal meetings only by appointment. To schedule a meeting, please see me at class or contact me by email. (Once I have an office, you will be welcome to stop by almost any time.) In addition, you are encouraged to ask questions in class or by sending me an email. Also, we can arrange telephone conferences. My email is wcsnyder@syr.edu. An alternate email is wcs@williamsnyder.com. My cellular telephone number is [REDACTED]. I am very willing to work with you individually, either in person or electronically. I am willing to meet outside of the office, but generally the presence of a third party will be required. As a rule, I do not meet one-on-one with students outside of my office.

Attendance Policy:

Regular and punctual attendance is required. You might need to miss a class for reasons that are personal and none of my business. I will respect that. However, you are required to notify me (preferably by email) of an absence if at all possible, even if your notice is sent at the last moment before class. If you miss more than 3 class hours (each class meeting is scheduled for 1.5 hours), you will need to meet with me about whether there is a systemic problem interrupting your attendance. If you miss more than six class hours, I reserve the option to drop you from the course with the approval of Dean Tomas Gonzalez.

Do not avoid class because you are unprepared and fear being called upon to speak. The goal here is your education, and you will learn more by attending class unprepared than by avoiding class altogether. Just be sure that you catch up on the readings.

If you miss a class, I will assume that you make it up by listening to a recording of the lecture.

Audio Recording:

All lectures will be digitally recorded. Audio files of at least the key lectures will be posted on the course web site. A RSS feed will be available. In the past, I have provided CD's of the lectures to students upon request, and I expect to continue that practice. Typically, I use WMA format, but I can convert to MP3 or M4U or about anything you need. You are welcome to make your own recordings of class, if you prefer.

Use of Internet:

Live access to the Internet during classes is permitted and encouraged. Some documents and exhibits will be distributed only in electronic form, and accessing them during class will be helpful. A constantly updating syllabus, copies of all handouts, and many useful links will be available throughout the course at www.prosecutingterrorists.com. Announcements and updates will be sent by email.

Feedback

Feedback and criticism by you to me is encouraged. It is too late for me to correct a problem if you wait until the course evaluation to tell me. A survey will be distributed during the first class and again at about the half-way point. The first will concern your background and goals for this course. The second will concern improvements or mid-course corrections. If you want to maintain anonymity, you can log into an email account I created at Yahoo and send a message to me at wcs@williamsnyder.com. I will have no way of knowing who logged into the account or from where. The username is "[REDACTED]" and the password is "[REDACTED]". You can sign in at <http://mail.yahoo.com/>. Of course, only one person can log in with that username at a time, so if you get an error message it may be that someone else is sending me feedback at the same time.

Note:

If you have a disability that may affect your performance in this class, please contact Assistant Dean Tomas Gonzalez in Suite 444 as soon as possible to discuss necessary accommodations.

Also, the Syracuse University Academic Integrity Policy holds students accountable for the integrity of the work they submit. Students should be familiar with the Policy and know that it is their responsibility to learn about instructor and general academic expectations with regard to proper citation of sources in written work. The policy also governs the integrity of work submitted in exams and assignments as well as the veracity of signatures on attendance sheets and other verifications of participation in class activities. Serious sanctions can result from academic dishonesty of any sort.
