

Call for Papers

Legally Immoral Activity: Testing the Limits of Intelligence Collection

February 11-12, 2020

at The Citadel, Charleston, South Carolina

Are there limits to intelligence collection in support of national security? Where, if at all, does a free and open society provide the limits of surveillance with civil liberties? Civil liberties are a founding tenet of democracy, but at what cost? How does a country balance collective security with individual rights? Recently, a Federal Court ordered Apple to help the FBI unlock the cellphone of a terrorist, but company officials would oppose that order, citing concerns over the privacy rights of all Americans.

This 2-day inter-disciplinary conference will examine the legal, ethical, social, economic, historical and political aspects of the United States government's ability to protect its citizens in an era that warfare has no societal or personal boundaries.

Call for paper presentations, workshops/interactive sessions, and posters/exhibits are welcome. The conference will be held February 11-12, 2020 on the campus of The Citadel in Charleston, South Carolina.

Deadline for proposals and abstracts must be received by October 15, 2019.

Inquires and Submissions should be sent to

Dr. Jan Goldman, Department of Intelligence and Security Studies

Email: jgoldma1@citadel.edu

THE CITADEL

INTELLIGENCE AND SECURITY STUDIES